We received 1.20 inches of rain on Tuesday of last week, and it dried up pretty quickly after such a muddy morning. I had to take the tractor to fix the fence, but it slipped too far with the front tires while trying to turn around in the road. However, I ended up getting out okay, just leaving horrible tracks. I was not planning on walking home in the rain.

I'm glad we only have the Highway 24 Garage Sale weekend once a year. It can be fun looking for a bargain, but it's also time-consuming. We had a work night at the museum on Thursday evening last week, preparing for the sale. I went to several on Friday morning and purchased some useful items, including steel fence posts, bags of mulch, paint, baking pans, good, heavy boots for chores, a pie carrier, and a little grinder. Also, a set of unicorn dishes that will find a new home in Iowa and bring happiness to a little girl. I found an old Swedish centennial cookbook dated 1848-1948, the year I was born. All the advertising is from places in Iowa, and members of a Lutheran church compiled the cookbook.

I drove to Clay Center on Saturday for the wedding of my niece, Hailey Sharp, to Ted Skalsky at the Catholic Church. Following the ceremony, the supper and dance were held near Leonardville at the 14 Hands Ranch, home of the bride's family. The weather cooperated, and it was a beautiful setting, thanks to the hard work and planning of family and friends. Several large tents were set up, chairs and tables decorated with green canning jars of wildflowers and daisies, a bar and remarkable dance floor had been built, and plenty of parking areas with lighted fencing leading down through the animal pens and even a beautiful moon later on in the evening. Wedding photos of the grandparents, great-grandparents, and parents, along with their wedding dates, were placed on pallets around additional containers of flowers and plants. The band, called "Brick Horse" from Emporia, had been playing together for ten years. They played quite a bit of country music, and the lead singer was excellent. The wedding couple will be making their home in eastern Nebraska, where John Deere employs Ted. Before the day was over on Sunday, the tents, dance floor, tables and chairs, and site were cleaned up by the family and wedding party. Steve wasn't up for the trip, so I drove home afterward, arriving at midnight. Those lovely deer were on the move, and I saw several along the roadside, avoiding hitting two at different spots.

This is what farm women do! I shut both chicken coops and discovered I had caught another coon in my trap, so I changed clothes and hauled the angry snarling coon down to the river at 12:30 at night. On the way home, another deer was on the road. The moral of the story is do not drive after dark!

Story Time at the museum on Saturday morning, May 24, was a consolidation of both patriotic Memorial Day and honoring Father's Day. The next Story Time will be held on Saturday, June 21, the first day of summer, so mark your calendars.

Happy Birthday, Rayland! One of my favorite nephews is having a birthday on Wednesday, June 11.

Be thinking of what to give or do for your father or grandfather on their Sunday. No ties, please. Take them out to dinner or prepare their favorite breakfast or dinner. Give them a gift certificate or wash and clean their vehicle. Let them know you appreciate all they do for you.

While living in Salina, I delivered ink jets to businesses and was sent out to the Land Institute. It is a nonprofit research organization located southeast of Salina, working to change the future of farming. Led by plant breeders, ecologists, and sociologists, it was founded in 1976. I recall that, at times, there have been controversies over specific topics. The goal is to create an alternative farming system based on perennial grains that will produce abundant food while minimizing environmental harm. I have always wanted to attend some of their functions, but I never got the chance. The Institute aims to utilize perennial grain crops to minimize annual tillage and replanting. Annual crops, such as corn, wheat, and soybeans, play a crucial role in feeding the world, but they also contribute to soil erosion and pollution from the use of fertilizers and pesticides. The Institute is attempting to adapt existing crops and develop new ones, such as Kernza, a perennial grain with numerous benefits. Kernza's seed heads

Suspect who shot KC area officer multiple times captured in Ellis County

ELLIS COUNTY—The Kansas Bureau of Investigation (KBI) canceled the Kansas Blue Alert that was issued after law enforcement were searching for a suspect believed to have shot a Lee's Summit police officer on Sunday night, June 1st, according to a media release from the KBI. The alert was canceled on Tuesday morning, June 3rd, after Thomas Eugene Tolbert, 27, was located and apprehended in Ellis, Kansas. In the early morning hours of June 3rd, the Ellis Police Department received a tip via CrimeStoppers that the suspect, identified as Thomas Tolbert, was staying at the Days Inn Hotel, located at 205 Washington Street in Ellis, according to a press release from the Ellis Police Department. The Ellis Police officer on duty requested that the CrimeStoppers tip line get in contact with Ellis County Communications to gather the most accurate information and broadcast it out to area law enforcement units. All available units were requested to respond to the City of Ellis so that a plan could be devised to verify the integrity of the tip that was received, the release said. At about 2:42 a.m., Ellis County Communications received additional information from witnesses who reported giving Tolbert a ride from the Kansas City, Missouri area. They stated they were enroute to Colorado and had been asked by a third party to transport Tolbert, unaware of his connection to the Blue Alert, the release said. According to the witnesses, Tolbert provided a false name and began acting suspiciously during the trip. Upon stopping to rest for the night, one of the witnesses saw the Blue Alert on social media featuring Tolbert's image and immediately contacted law enforcement. At 2:45 a.m., the Ellis Police Department requested activation of the Hays Police Department's Special Situation Response Team (SSRT). Members of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation also responded to the scene. At 4:39 a.m. SSRT began evacuating adjacent hotel rooms. Officers from the Hays Police Department, deputies from the Ellis County Sheriff's Office and KBI agents arrived at the hotel and safely took Tolbert into custody at 4:40 a.m. The KBI said Tolbert was arrested on a Missouri warrant for assault first-degree or attempted serious physical injury, armed criminal coercion, unlawful possession of a firearm, resisting arrest or detention by fleeing, and second-degree domestic assault. He was booked into the Ellis County Sheriff's Office Jail. (Hays Post)

Water rescues after heavy rains cause flash flooding in Kansas

WICHITA—Heavy rains caused flash flooding in the Wichita area of south-central Kansas, forcing firefighters to rescue dozens of people including stranded motorists. Sedgwick County's Emergency Management Director, Julie Stimson, said at a briefing on Tuesday night, June 3rd, that the County had received anywhere from one and one half inches to seven inches since Monday, June 2nd. She warned motorists who run into flooded areas not to drive around barricades and emergency vehicles and to turn around instead. Kansas Governor Laura Kelly issued a disaster emergency declaration to enable state agencies to provide assistance. The Wichita Fire Department used boats to rescue several motorists trapped in their cars. While the water sometimes reached windshield height, some people still attempted to drive through it. With more rain in the forecast officials warned that the soil in the area is saturated and even an inch or two of rainfall could lead to localized flooding. (Hays Post)

Some craft breweries are beginning to use this grain for the sweet nutty flavor. Some bakeries and restaurants are developing Kernza bread, pasta, crackers, and pancakes. Friday morning tours are offered from April to November for guided walking tours of the research plots, buildings, and greenhouses. Tour forms are available at landinstitute.org. Bender Nature area can also be visited, located one mile north of the main grounds. It is a 206-acre nature area featuring a three-mile hiking trail that winds through the prairie and along the Smoky Hill River.

I read an article about rodeo history, and the oldest consecutive rodeo in Kansas is the Strong City Flint Hills Rodeo, held the first weekend following Memorial Day. This rodeo owes much of its history to the Emmett Roberts family, with world champion performers including the oldest child, Marge Roberts, who won the women's bronc riding in Cheyenne in 1940.

Her younger brother, Ken, was named world champion bull rider in 1943, 1944, and 1945. Gerald, another brother, was the first Kansas cowboy to become the world's all-around cowboy in 1942 and again in 1948. Descendants of this family still reside and do business in Chase County, and the Roberts family hosted the regional cowboy poetry contest on Saturday, June 7, in Cottonwood Falls. I remember Ken and Gerald Roberts in connection with the Wild Bill Hickok Rodeo in

Back in Shakespeare's day, mattresses were fastened to bed frames by ropes; by doing this you were able to pull the ropes which would make the mattress tighter, therefore making it firmer to sleep on... hence the saying, "goodnight, sleep tight."
