Tailored for Tigers clothing drive nets 350-plus items for FHSU students

BY FHSU UNIVERSITY COMMUNICATIONS

HAYS – More than 350 items of clothing were collected during the recent donation drive for Tailored for Tigers, a professional clothing closet at Fort Hays State University that offers business attire free of charge to students. Women Who Lead, a 501(c)3 organization that strives to make a positive difference in the Hays community, made a $2,000 cash gift to purchase garments that are in short supply. The donation drive began in mid-April, and contributions have continued to pour in past the May 15 campaign end date. Tailored for Tigers is made possible solely through the generosity of community members, alumni, faculty, staff, and other donors. The FHSU Career Services office, which oversees Tailored for Tigers, accepts donations of new or gently used professional clothing for men and women year-round. Apparel should be in good condition, laundered, and of contemporary style.

Clothing may be dropped off at the front desk on the first floor of the Fischli-Wills Center for Student Success during business hours.

If a donation contains a large number of pieces, contact the Career Services at 785-628-4260 in advance to arrange a convenient time for drop off. “These contributions ensure that professional dress is available to students, helping them make a strong first impression, boosting their confidence, and preparing them for the opportunities ahead,” Lisa Karlin, Interim Director of FHSU’s Career Services office, said.

Through Tailored for Tigers, every student enrolled at FHSU has access to business attire at no cost, removing financial barriers. During the 2024-25 academic year, 264 students visited the clothing closet and selected more than 500 items for interviews, career fairs, conferences, and other activities.
