Before you brag about the latest prize fish catch, take a look at the whopper being displayed in The Tribune window. The fish, which spans 16 ½ feet from mouth to tail fin, is actually a large Japanese kite which was sent to Alec Lee Beth, 223 Andrick, by his aunt, Gladys Mason, an exchange instructor in Japan. The kite is made of wax paper and is hand painted.

Arch Davenport returned from a trip to the country a few days ago and says that unless we have a hail storm or tornado, there will not be a forest tree standing in Bourbon County one year from today, as it will take every one of them and more, too, judging from the prospects to make rails for the corn cribs this fall.

Eyes and Biscuit Topped Whatever

you for a while because I had cataract surgery on one of my eyes. I'm pleased to say that the doctor was able to also do a procedure to help with my glaucoma. I've been using two kinds of drops twice a day for years. The drops have not been a big deal to me because my eyes are so very important. Frankly, I'd eat dirt every day if doctor told me that it would help my eyes. Anyway, I will have the other eye done in about a week, so I may not visit with you until that's done. I had planned on a long recovery where Husband would do all the cooking, dish washing, laundry and light cleaning. That didn't happen. I just took one day off and went right back to my routine. I was pleased at such a quick recovery, but sorry I missed the vacation time. I should have dragged my feet a little, but now he knows that next time I can resume my routine. I need to think ahead!

I will tell you that I have not cooked or baked lately because May is our busiest month. We add two birthdays to the Mother's day and graduation get togethers and I want to enjoy all of them! The weather certainly had not been as planned, and I'm wondering if, when summer does get here, if it will hit us hard and not get cool until fall. I have enjoyed the bright green of the grass and my plants are thriving. We have one Roma tomato that needs sun to ripen. I haven't paid

I haven't visited with much attention to the rest as they are in beds that I would have to walk in wet grass to check on them. One of my many dislikes is to walk in wet grass. Ick! Another is to endure muddy puppy paws, but I do put up with that because we do have such sweet puppies. Unfortunately, Husband had a tick on his arm that I had to remove with tweezers, (another Ick), but it did not have the white dot on it. We treated the arm with medicine and Husband looks like he will recover. (I hope so, because I need him to drive me home from my eye sur-

> My recipe today is altered so much by what I had on hand that I don't feel that I even need to give credit to the original. There are many variations of this so feel free to use your own to suit your family. The shredded beef was leftover as were the beans. I found the beans in the freezer when I cleaned it last time and I must have used the rest for chili. We liked my version, so here it is. I promise that I will do more cooking and baking as time allows.

> Biscuit Topped Whatev-

In a casserole dish place leftover chili or in my case, red beans, and season them if you desire. I used leftover shredded beef and spread it over the beans. Then I topped it with frozen biscuits and baked it at 400 degrees until the biscuits browned. Now you see that there are many possibilities for this dish.

Use your imagination on this recipe for Biscuit Topped Whatever. It's versatile and any combination is good.
